JOHN F. KENNEDY LIBRARY
PRESIDENTIAL PAPERS OF JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY
PRESIDENT'S OFFICE FILES

FOREWORD

Archival Context

The President's Office Files is one of eight major groups of files in the Presidential Papers subcollection of the Papers of John F. Kennedy. The other seven groups are:

- The White House Central Subject Files
- The White House Classified Files ¹
- The White House Name Files
- The White House Chronological Files
- The White House Overflow Files
- The White House Social Files
- The National Security Files

Administrative Context

The President's Office Files are not a formal or complete record of the Executive Office of the President or of the White House Office. ² They were originally a set of working files kept by President Kennedy's personal secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, for his immediate convenience as she interpreted it from day to day. They were kept in the office of the personal secretary, just outside the Oval Office of the President in the White House.

For documents relating to the various component offices of the Executive Office of the President, researchers should consult other collections and subcollections in the Kennedy Library in addition to the President's Office Files. The finding aids of these other collections and the assistance of Library staff members will be required to draw together the disparate parts of the record from various files and collections.

Custodial and Archival Background

Shortly after Lyndon B. Johnson became President, the files of President Kennedy's personal secretary were removed from the White House to the Executive Office Building next door, where Mrs. Lincoln was assigned an office. Both the files and Mrs. Lincoln then moved to the National Archives Building in August 1964, where she continued custody of the material until it was transferred to the National Archives and Records Service as part of the papers of John F. Kennedy, deeded to the United States in the latter part of 1965.

1 A file to which classified and other sensitive documents from the White House Central Subject Files were removed by the central reference staff in the White House

2 For a full picture of the organization of the Executive Office of the President, see the U.S. Government Organization Manual, particularly for the years of the Kennedy administration. Copies are available in the Kennedy Library.

For a number of years these files were known as the "Evelyn Lincoln Files," much as the National Security Files were known as the "McGeorge Bundy Files."

The staff of the Kennedy Library processed and rearranged the files prior to opening them to public research. A preliminary folder title list and a survey of the files made in 1968 indicated that the filing was whimsical and uninformed and that the whole set of files would require careful study and some reorganization to make it a useful research source. The files were found to include documents not only from the administration period but also some pre-Presidential papers, some personal family files, and some files accumulated by Mrs. Lincoln in the period 1964-1965. Numerous folders were poorly identified as to contents, and series titles were not adequate to describe the rational order of the files.

Approximately 12 linear shelf feet of pre-Presidential material (general files, 1960 task force reports, and 1960 campaign and post-campaign correspondence) were removed from the President's Office Files and placed with the Pre-Presidential Papers subcollection of the Papers of John F. Kennedy. About eight archives boxes (3.2 linear shelf feet) of personal material were removed by representatives of the Kennedy family and were not donated with the remainder of the files. In general the files accumulated in the post-Presidential period of Mrs. Lincoln's custody have been set aside to form the nucleus of a new subcollection of all post-Presidential material that has come to the Library.

The remaining files were studied carefully by the staff and put into the order indicated in the series and folders listed in this finding aid. In some cases loosely coherent files were broken up and redistributed among established series. For instance, a set of "Secret Books" (briefing books for visits of foreign dignitaries, and in no way a complete set) was divided among the appropriate country subseries of the Countries series, where other similar material was already filed. A series entitled "Daily Reports" file was apparently a post-1963 construction by Mrs. Lincoln and perhaps others trying to reconstruct the daily activities of President Kennedy by illustrating his appointments calendar with representative documents from the files. While it was impossible to know the original files locations of the documents with precision, the staff placed them in logical topical files as seemed appropriate.

Even within series that were accepted and maintained by the staff there was still need for considerable arrangement and rearrangement. Overly thick folders in which papers were being damaged by overcrowding were broken down into smaller segments. Files arranged under "London," "England," and "Great Britain" were combined into a "United Kingdom" subseries. At times material found in wrong folders (such as a Sukarno letter in the Pakistan file) had to be replaced in proper files, and frequently items had to be returned to alphabetic or chronological order.

INTRODUCTION

The President's Office Files were donated to the Kennedy Library in 1965 as a part of the papers of John F. Kennedy. The donors of the Kennedy papers have assigned their literary property rights in this material to the United States. Documents in the Kennedy papers prepared by officials of the United States government as part of their official duties are generally considered to be in the public domain. For further information on literary property rights, researchers should consult with the Director of the John F. Kennedy Library or with a member of the staff.

Material from the President's Office Files first became available for research use in December 1973 when the first series (Press Conferences) was processed and opened. By January 1974 all but one of the series (White House Signal Agency, which consists of classified microfilm) was opened to research. Prior to that time, numerous documents, representing about one-fifth of the total volume, were removed and placed under seal in accordance with restrictions contained in the donors' deed of gift. Material withdrawn from the files is of three kinds:

- (1) National security documents classified in accordance with laws and executive orders have been placed under seal. Classified documents may be subject to mandatory classification review by originating agencies under the provisions of Executive Order 11652 of March 8, 1972. Researchers interested in initiating such review should consult with a member of the Library staff.
- (2) Documents that might tend to damage, injure, harass or embarrass living individuals or that might prejudice the friendly relations between the United States and other nations have been placed under seal. These items are reviewed annually by the staff of the Library with the purpose of opening items to which these restrictions may no longer apply.
- (3) Documents bearing the original signatures or other handwriting of notable people, and documentary material suitable for museum display (such as photographs and ambassadorial letters of credence), and other items of intrinsic value have been removed from the files and replaced with electrostatic copies.

Withdrawn materials under paragraphs (1) and (2), above, are indicated in the open files by withdrawal sheets that describe the material and identify the files locations of the sealed documents. Blue withdrawal cards indicate material relating to nuclear energy that was removed from the files in 1966 and 1967. Pink withdrawal sheets, often with typewritten inventories attached, indicate material withdrawn during processing the files in 1973. As restrictions expire and as documents are returned to the open files they are deleted from the withdrawal sheets.

The withdrawn valuable documents may be viewed by researchers demonstrating a manifest need to see the documents in their original form, but they may do so only under the strict supervision of a member of the Library staff.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The President's Office Files contain, with some few clearly identified exceptions, documents from the period of the Kennedy administration (January 1961 through November 1963). The order of the twelve series and the series titles were imposed on the files by the staff of the Kennedy Library in 1973 on the original random arrangement of variously titled files.

One hundred and thirty-eight boxes [57.5 linear shelf feet] of these files were first opened to research in December 1973-January 1974. At the same time, 37.9 boxes [16.05 linear shelf feet] of material were closed due to donor restrictions or national security classifications (the latter accounting for about 90% of the closings). Also at the same time 16.7 boxes [6.94 linear shelf feet] of valuable original documents were withdrawn and replaced by electrostatic copies.

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE

28 Boxes. [11.6 Linear Shelf Feet]

Twenty-six boxes [10.8 linear shelf feet] of General Correspondence were opened to research in January 1974. One and one-half boxes [0.6 linear shelf foot] were closed due to donor restrictions or national security classification. One-half box [0.2 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was withdrawn for preservation and replaced in the open files by electrostatic copies.

The series consists chiefly of incoming letters and telegrams of a general nature, most of which are from the public and people not known by the President. Some items, however, are from friends, relations and people in public life. The series was formed around an original nucleus of "General Correspondence" files (letters from the public and routine social correspondence such as greeting cards) to which were added two boxes of cables received during the meeting with Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna, one box of formal Fourth of July and birthday greetings, and two boxes of requests for autographs and photographs, and some correspondence concerning gifts to the President. While the origins of the series is somewhat haphazard and the contents mostly unimportant, there is (in addition to pleas' for aid, anniversary messages, and other gratuitous communications) some interesting correspondence with journalists, Congressmen, campaign aides, politicians, and government officials. Of particular interest are letters from writers sending memoranda, drafts of articles, editorials, and press clippings for Mr. Kennedy's information and comment.

The bulk of the series is divided by year and then arranged alphabetically by name of correspondent. Most items are for the years 1961-1963, although there are a few letters of both earlier and later dates. Unfortunately, the original filing was inconsistent, and correspondence from a given individual may be found filed under either his name or under his business or institution's title. The remainder of the series consists of the five small subseries: Birthday Greetings; Fourth of July Greetings; USS THRESHER (condolences); Gifts, Photographs, Autographs; and Vienna Meeting. These are also arranged alphabetically, by correspondent or by topic.

This series, while not a major reference source, may be of supplemental interest to researchers. Users should also refer to the Special Correspondence series, the Staff Memoranda series and to the White House Name Files.

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE FILES

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

9 Boxes. [3.8 Linear Shelf Feet]

Seven boxes [2.9 linear shelf feet) of Special Correspondence were opened to research in January 1974. At that time, one box [0.4 linear shelf foot] was closed due to donor restrictions or national security classification. In addition, one box [0.4 linear shelf foot] of valuable originals was withdrawn for preservation and replaced in the open files by electrostatic copies.

Formerly called the "VIP Alpha" series, the Special Correspondence series is a unique collection of letters and memoranda received by the President from distinguished public figures and close friends. Curiously, material may be found filed by name of correspondent or by person discussed in the correspondence, the criteria being inconsistent at the time of filing. There are three kinds of items: notes and letters from or concerning the President's family and friends; correspondence from members of the President's staff, advisers and non-government officials; and letters from prominent public figures. Former presidents, foreign heads of state, religious leaders, distinguished Congressmen, and well-known artists and writers are among those whose letters were placed in this series by Mrs. Lincoln. Of particular interest are letters from Herbert Hoover, Harry Truman, Dwight Eisenhower, Winston Churchill, Eleanor Roosevelt, Pope John XXIII, Pope Paul VI, Pablo Casals, and Robert Frost. The Special Correspondence series is distinguished by the notoriety of the people included, their particular relationships with President Kennedy, and the personal and oftentimes friendly nature of much of their correspondence. For the most part, this material is of an unofficial nature, and represents the personal feelings, thoughts and advice of the writers on matters not falling under official responsibilities.

The Special Correspondence series is arranged alphabetically by name of correspondent. One may find some correspondence with other prominent people in the General Correspondence series, the Staff Memoranda, the Countries series, and the Departments and Agencies series. Users should also refer to the White House Name Files in seeking all correspondence from a particular person.

SPEECH FILES

20 Boxes. [9.3 Linear Shelf Feet]

Fifteen boxes [6.3 linear shelf feet] of the Speech Files were opened to research in January 1974. At that time one-tenth of a box [0.04 linear shelf foot] was closed because of national security classification. There are four and nine-tenths boxes [2.03 linear shelf feet] of valuable original documents, chiefly reading copies and drafts with handwritten notations by President Kennedy, which have been withdrawn for preservation and replaced with electrostatic copies.

This series contains, in chronological order, speeches, remarks, announcements and proclamations which President Kennedy made during the three years of his administration. A major portion of the material is the official press copy of speeches, but there are also numerous reading copies, drafts, memoranda, schedules of visits, and other supplementary information and background material on particular speeches. The speeches and remarks vary a great deal as to subject and reflect the President's schedule of visits to cities and foreign countries, meetings with heads of state, greetings to visiting groups and dignitaries, messages to Congress, remarks at state receptions and banquets, and official proclamations. The Speech Files are rich with the President's notations and comments, since reading copies, drafts, dinner menus, programs and so forth were all used to make notations and changes.

There is an alphabetic index, by name and subject to the Speech Files, to assist researchers unfamiliar with the chronology. Researchers should consult the Speech Files primarily for the texts of particular speeches. It should be noted, however, that the series is not a complete compilation of the speeches of President Kennedy. Announcements, remarks, and proclamations on numerous other topics not included in the Speech Files may also be found in the Legislative Files series, the Subjects series, and the Countries series. Researchers will also find the Speech Files of the Papers of Theodore Sorensen, also in the Kennedy Library, a helpful additional source. Researchers should also consult the Public Papers of the Presidents, John F. Kennedy, 1961-1963 (3 volumes), which are well-indexed.

LEGISLATIVE FILES

5.5 Boxes. [2.3 Linear Shelf Feet]

Five boxes [2.1 linear shelf feet] of the Legislative Files were opened to research in January 1974. At the same time, one-tenth of a box [0.04 linear shelf foot) was closed because of donor restrictions or national security classification. Four-tenths of a box [0.16 linear shelf foot] was withdrawn for preservation and the originals were replaced in the open files by electrostatic copies.

The Legislative Files series was constructed by the staff of the Kennedy Library from a four-box nucleus of a "Legislation" series, a partial box of "Messages to Congress," and documents dealing with legislation from the subjects part of an old "Special Topics" series and from the disbanded "Daily Reports." What has emerged is a very incomplete, fragmentary file of routine reports and occasionally interesting memoranda which at least partially documents the highlights of the efforts of the White House staff to get the administration's legislative program enacted. The series includes notes for meetings with Congressmen, summary reports on the progress of legislation, messages to Congress, memoranda about specific pieces of legislation and the interests and concerns of individual Congressmen, and lists of Congressmen attending bill signings and social events at the White House.

Since much of this material covers more than one piece of legislation, it has been arranged chronologically rather than topically. This arrangement was also selected to afford researchers an overview of concurrent White House interests in many legislative activities. To assist researchers in locating information on a particular legislator or on a particular piece of legislation, the folder title list is supplemented by the names of Congressmen mentioned and topics covered in the documents (less the summary reports) in each folder.

This series, being so fragmentary, requires researchers to consult other series, collections and subcollections for a fuller account. Researchers will be especially interested in the Lawrence O'Brien papers when they are opened to the public. Other collections of interest are the Theodore Sorensen Papers, the Myer Feldman Papers, and the Lee White Papers.

PRESS CONFERENCES

9 Boxes. [3.7 Linear Shelf Feet]

Eight boxes [3.3 linear shelf feet] of Press Conference files were opened to research in December 1973. Two boxes [0.84 linear shelf foot] were removed because of national security restrictions. In addition, a small amount of valuable original documents was removed and replaced in the open files by electrostatic copies.

Arranged chronologically, the Press Conference series contains the transcripts for John F. Kennedy's regular Washington press conferences throughout the three years of his presidency. The conferences were held bi-weekly and the materials reflect the regularity of information needed for these briefings. In addition to the transcripts, the files also include: department and agency summaries of bi-weekly activities; briefing papers on situations and developments in foreign countries; briefing papers on such issues as disarmament, foreign trade, civil rights, and employment; draft press releases; and news clippings. There are no transcripts in this series for the special or impromptu news conferences held in Washington, or for the press conferences at Hyannis Port, Palm Beach, Paris and Bonn.

For a good set of transcripts with index, researchers interested in President Kennedy's press conferences should consult the Public Papers of the President, John F. Kennedy, 1961-1963, and Kennedy and the Press, a collection of press conference transcripts annotated by Chase and Lerman (both available in the Kennedy Library).

Researchers should also consult other series of the President's Office Files, such as Departments and Agencies, Countries, Legislative Files, Staff Memoranda, and Subjects. They should also refer to the Papers of Pierre Salinger and to the PR portion of the White House Central Subject Files.

STAFF MEMORANDA

8.4 Boxes. [3.64 Linear Shelf Feet]

Six boxes [2.5 linear shelf feet] of the Staff Memoranda series were opened to research in January 1974. At that time two and three-tenths boxes [1.1 linear shelf feet] were closed because of donor restrictions or national security classification. Approximately one-tenth of a box [about 0.04 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was withdrawn and replaced in the open file with electrostatic copies.

The Staff Memoranda series was established by the President's personal secretary to contain memoranda from the President to staff members and from staff members in the White House to the President. At the beginning of the series is an incomplete collection of carbon copies of outgoing memoranda dictated by the President to Mrs. Lincoln. The remainder of the series consists of fragmentary records of memoranda from the staff to the President. Most of such memoranda may be found scattered throughout this and other Presidential Papers in topical series appropriate to the subject matter of the memoranda. Like so many of these files, this series is in no way a complete record of all transactions between the President and the members of his White House staff. It is simply a collection of memoranda that came to hand in the office of the personal secretary and were filed by her in a series she called "Staff Memoranda."

The Staff Memoranda series is alphabetically arranged by name of staff member, except that the first folder consists of the special set of outgoing memos mentioned above (arranged alphabetically within the folder by name of staff member). A comparison of the folder title list with lists of staff members (such as may be found in the U.S. Government Organization Manual) shows that not all staff members are represented in this series.

Researchers should consult other series of the President's Office Files, and should particularly consult the files of various staff members in the White House Overflow Files and the personal papers collections donated by the staff members.

DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

33.5 Boxes. [14.0 Linear Shelf Feet]

Twenty-seven boxes [11.3 linear shelf feet] of the Departments and Agencies series were opened to research in December 1973. At that time six and one-tenth boxes [2.54 linear shelf feet] were closed due to donor restrictions or national security classification. Four-tenths of a box [0.16 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was removed and replaced with electrostatic copies.

Originally referred to by the President's personal secretary as the "Departmental" files, the Departments and Agencies series was reorganized by the Kennedy Library staff to include documents found in a small group of files entitled "Cabinet Meetings" and the files on miscellaneous government boards and commissions found among the "Subjects" and "Special Topics" files of the original file scheme.

The Departments and Agencies series is divided into three subseries: major departments and agencies (alphabetically arranged); a small subseries of items left behind in the Cabinet Room after meetings and collected there by the personal secretary (arranged chronologically by date of Cabinet Meeting); and a subseries of minor executive branch committees, boards, commissions and offices (arranged alphabetically).

The series is manifestly not a complete record of transactions between the President and the elements of the Executive Branch. Not all departments and agencies, boards and commissions, etc. are represented in these files, as a comparison of the folder title list with the U.S. Government Organization Manual readily shows. However, many highlights of the President's relations with various elements of the federal bureaucracy are highlighted in this series.

Researchers should also consult the papers of various Cabinet and sub-cabinet officials that have been donated to the Kennedy Library. They should also refer to the White House Central Subject Files FG series and to the papers of White House staff members responsible for various departments and agencies, particularly the Myer Feldman Papers, the Lee White Papers, the Theodore Sorensen Papers, and (when they can be declassified and made available) the National Security Files.

SUBJECTS

18.5 Boxes. [6.75 Linear Shelf Feet]

Sixteen boxes [6.7 linear shelf feet) of the Subjects series were opened to research in January 1974. At that time two boxes [0.84 linear shelf foot] were closed because of national security classification or donor restrictions. In addition, one-half box [0.21 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was withdrawn for preservation and replaced with electrostatic copies.

The Subjects series was created by the Kennedy Library staff out of many small, whimsically created original files which did not belong in any of the well-defined series. Three small files, "Civil Rights," "Polls," and "Democratic National Committee," were transferred to the new series in their entirety. Other documents from a "Special Topics" file, from the "Daily Reports" file and from a large group of "Miscellaneous" files were added to the new series forming a large and varied topical file.

The resulting series includes documents relating to non-government organizations such as patriotic societies, to states and territories, and to many miscellaneous topics from the U-2 incident to mental retardation. In many cases, particularly with organizations and institutions, similar material may also be found in other series such as the Speech Files and General Correspondence. Quantity and quality are uneven throughout the series. The more valuable files include NATO, UN, Disarmament, and Nonaligned Nations Summit Meeting, in addition to those already mentioned above.

The material is arranged alphabetically by topic from Abu Simbel to Wyoming. Notable larger subseries include the topics mentioned and a good set of files on Trips.

COUNTRIES

48 Boxes. [20.0 Linear Shelf Feet]

Eighteen boxes [7.5 linear shelf feet] of the Countries series were opened to research in January 1974. At that time twenty-one and one-half boxes [9.0 linear shelf feet] were closed because of national security classification. In addition, eight and one-half boxes [3.5 linear shelf feet] of valuable original documents were withdrawn for preservation and were replaced in the files by electrostatic copies.

The Countries series contains many State Department cables, reports and memoranda, and similar documents from the White House staff and from other agencies concerning U.S. relations with foreign countries. There is a great deal of material on the more formal aspects of these relations, including letters of credence and recall of ambassadors, arrangements by the Office of Protocol for visits of state, and briefing materials for President Kennedy's visits with foreign dignitaries in Washington and abroad. The Countries series is not a complete record of U.S. foreign policy for the Kennedy Administration, nor is it even a complete record of the President's participation in the formulation and execution of that policy, although many of the documents in this series do record some of the highlights. Until the National Security Files can be declassified and made available it is probably the richest source of documents of the time relating to foreign policy available to scholars.

The Countries series is arranged alphabetically by the name of each country and within each country subseries the arrangement is usually chronological. In some cases an original distinction between "Security" folders (containing classified material) and the rest of the subseries has been maintained. In some cases the material has been further divided into topical sub-subseries such as material relating to the Vienna meeting between Kennedy and Khrushchev. At the end of the Countries series is a small subseries of briefing material prepared for President Kennedy in the spring of 1963, detailing the background and giving performance estimates of foreign ambassadors accredited to Washington. (A parallel book on U.S. representatives abroad is found in the State subseries of the Departments and Agencies series.) Some filing oddities such as "Antarctica," "Puerto Rico," and "Ismali Moslem Sect" have been retained to show the flavor of the original, although "Scotland" has been merged into the "United Kingdom" subseries.

Researchers should also refer to the CO series of the White House Central Subject Files and, as they become declassified and opened, the National Security Files. Oral History interviews with U.S. ambassadors and with foreign dignitaries are another rich source available in the Kennedy Library.

PERSONAL SECRETARY'S FILES

6.3 Boxes. [2.62 Linear Shelf Feet]

Six boxes [2.5 linear shelf feet] of the Personal Secretary's Files were opened to research in January 1974. Two-tenths of a box [0.08 linear shelf foot] was closed at that time due to donor restrictions or national security classification. One-tenth of a box [0.04 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was withdrawn for preservation and replaced by electrostatic copies.

This series has been entitled the Personal Secretary's Files by the Kennedy Library for want of a better descriptive heading. The origin of the file is uncertain. It was maintained by the personal secretary either at the direction of President Kennedy or because she found it useful in answering repeated queries from the press and public about personal matters relating to the President and his family. It was evidently begun while John F. Kennedy was a Senator and maintained through the Presidency. Included in the series are materials on articles and books written by and about John F. Kennedy, his organization memberships, gifts to the President, PT 109 (boat, book and movie), and an incomplete file of executive orders. The series may be described as a potpourri of miscellaneous information about John F. Kennedy and his associations.

The series is arranged alphabetically by subject with the subseries being Articles, Books, Gifts, Memberships, Messages, PT 109, Schedules, and White House. In many instances the material duplicates or compliments material found elsewhere in the President's Office Files and in other collections and subcollections in the Kennedy Library. For example, there is also material on gifts in the General Correspondence and Countries series of the President's Office Files. Also, the Library has a complete and indexed list of the President's appointments which should probably be relied upon ahead of the "Schedules" found here. Researchers interested in John F. Kennedy as an author should speak with the Library's Printed Materials staff.

Researchers may find this series interesting for information about John F. Kennedy's career, but it should be understood that other portions of the files and other collections should also be checked to verify and supplement material found here.

SPECIAL EVENTS THROUGH THE YEARS

4.4 Boxes. 11.7 Linear Shelf Feet]

Four boxes [11.7 linear shelf feet] of the Special Events through the Years series were opened to research in January 1974. At that time one-tenth of a box [0.04 linear shelf foot] was closed due to restrictions by the donors. In addition, three-tenths of a box [0.12 linear shelf foot] of valuable original documents was removed and replaced by electrostatic copies.

"Special Events through the Years" is the title given by the personal secretary to this eclectic collection of materials about significant events in the life and career of John F. Kennedy. Some material from this series was transferred to more appropriate locations, including several items removed to the Kennedy Library museum. The files are arranged chronologically from 1939 through 1963.

There is little in the files to indicate what criteria were used in selecting its contents, and many significant events are obviously missing. The bulk of the material centers around the 1960 Democratic National Convention and the presidential election campaign of that year, and it includes campaign speeches, articles and news clippings, correspondence on the 1960 convention, and the convention acceptance speech, "The New Frontier," delivered by John F. Kennedy following his nomination. Also included are items relating to the inauguration in January 1961, to the President's trip to Vienna in June 1961, memoranda concerning the prospective 1964 campaign, and lists of gifts to the President forwarded through the White House Gift Unit.

The Special Events through the Years series focuses on isolated events, and there are few background memoranda or other documents to fill in the substance of the events and activities. Other files researchers should consult include the Personal Secretary's Files series, the Staff Memoranda series, the Subjects series, and the Countries series of the President's Office Files, and the Pre-Presidential Papers subcollection of the Papers of John F. Kennedy.

WHITE HOUSE SIGNAL AGENCY

1 Box. [0.42 Linear Shelf Foot]

This series consists of 28 rolls of 16mm microfilm of traffic logs and selected incoming and outgoing messages that passed through the White House communications center during the period 1/1/61 through 11/22/63. The entire series is closed because a high proportion of the items filmed are classified CONFIDENTIAL and SECRET in accordance with national security regulations.

There is no indication from the material itself as to why these documents were selected for microfilming, although it is clear that the material here represents but a portion of the total traffic passed by the White House communications center. A cursory scan of the film indicates that it is not of good quality and that it is difficult to read on a standard 35mm microfilm reader.

Of particular interest are logs of traffic passed during trips to Canada, Europe and South America in 1961, trips to Mexico City and Nassau in 1962, and the trip to Costa Rica in 1963. Of additional interest are logs and traffic passed during several of President Kennedy's trips around the United States, including his last trip to Texas in 1963.

The series is arranged chronologically for the most part, although there are inconsistencies as may be noted in the list of contents.
